

About the Society

Monthly lectures during the winter on archaeological subjects are given and illustrated by experts in their own field and are very popular. There are many opportunities to take part in practical archaeological excavations, surveying, finds processing, field-walking, archival work, etc.

There is a journal published by the Society to which members are encouraged to contribute.

The Society is affiliated to the Sussex Archaeological Society and enjoys close ties to Worthing Museum.

Worthing Archaeological Society

Digging into the past...

The Society was established in 1922 to promote archaeological awareness and understanding within the public domain.

Our archaeological heritage is very rich within the local area and the Society encourages the proper recording and preservation of all antiquities.
